Subpoenas issued in police test investigation

By Jack C. Ventimiglia
Executive editor

GRANITE CITY—Subpoenas resulting from the two-year investigation of city police scores were delivered Wednesday, said Dick Allen, Madison County state's attorney.

The county grand jury convened at 9 a.m. this morning to consider evidence involving two policemen who led the nation in scores on a written police test. The test served as a partial basis for promotions to sergeant for the two officers.

Allen said nine persons will be interviewed by the grand jury and testimony could last into Friday.

Fourth Ward Alderman Dan Partney, former chairman of the city's Fire and Police Commission, is among those subpoenaed. The police test was mailed to his home before being administered.

Partney said Wednesday he has nothing to hide. He said the issue was manufactured for political reasons.

"I believe the whole initial thing is political,"

"I think that's crazy. I don't know why they waited until after my election in 1987."

—Dan Partney
4th Ward alderman

Partney said.

The test was taken in July 1985. At Allen's request, in June 1987, an investigation of the scores was conducted by the Division of Criminal Investigation of the Illinois State Police.

Partney said the issue wasn't raised until after his election to alderman in April.

"I think that's crazy," Partney said. "I don't know why they waited until after my election in 1987."

The police test results were the target of an on-going investigation, Assistant City Attorney

John Hopkins said Wednesday. When enough information was gathered, Hopkins said, it was presented to Allen and then DCI.

"The investigation that we conducted was preliminary to the DCI even being asked to investigate," Hopkins said.

Partney said if the state's attorney wants information never been to one before, I understand the state's attorney can get anything out of the grand jury he wants," Partney said. "All I know is I've done nothing wrong."

During the past several months, Partney has alleged the investigation was sought by Mayor Von Dee Cruse's administration for political reasons, because Partney had been considered a mayoral rival in 1989.

The allegation was repeated by Bob Barton, a former member of the Fire and Police Commission who was subpoenaed Wednesday.

"It's an exercise in political futility," Barton said. "I'd done the investigation prior to (Hopkins) and they (DCI) haven't done anything different."

Cruse, who has repeatedly denied having a political motive, said the grand jury will resolve the police test issue.

"The air should be cleared one way or the other," Cruse said Wednesday.

Cruse said he feels no animosity toward Partney and that the two have discussed civic issues without including the police test investigation.

"He's been a hell of an alderman, really. He comes prepared," Cruse said. "Danny's been nothing but a gentleman through the whole thing."

Board wants Granite City, not Hartford library help

By Bill Bagby
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY—Granite City Library should continue to serve Mitchell Elementary School with the bookmobile program, District 9 officials agreed, but the Hartford librarian thinks Hartford should handle the job.

Hartford librarian Gwen Dake said the library should handle the service because Mitchell Elementary School is in Chouteau Township. Under the Project Plus Program, which provides state funds to the Hartford Library, all Chouteau Township residents are to be served by the Hartford Library from July 1 to July 1, 1988.

Superintendent Gb Walmsley said he was told by Dake the Hartford library would provide services to Mitchell School and for the district not to accept bookmobile services from the Granite City Library.

Duke said she didn't tell administrators that the bookmobile couldn't go to Mitchell School.

The Hartford Library doesn't have a bookmobile, Dake said.

Police seize slot machines at DAV Club

GRANITE CITY—Five slot machines were seized and one man was arrested Tuesday after a plain clothes patrolman allegedly saw three slot machines pay off at the Disabled American Veterans Club, 1317 18th St.

Bartender George J. Krpan, 61, of 816 Grand Ave., Madison, was arrested on a city charge of gambling while on duty at the club at about 3:16 p.m.

LT. Col. James Lengyel said a patrolman was sent to the club after his department received a complaint about activities there. He expected no more arrests.

According to police reports, when the patrolman entered the DAV, he saw several patrons in the bar, but no bartender. Four of five poker machines were being played by a group of women who had rolls of coins in front of them. The patrolman said.

The officer then put quarters in three of five slot machines at the club and won all three times, with quarters pouring from the bottom of the machines.

After calling for assistance, the officer said he saw Krpan at the bar and notified him of his arrest. Workers from the street department arrived to pick up the slot machines, but left the poker machines. Lengyel said there was no evidence that those machines were paying off to customers.

The DAV was allowed to remain open pending an expected hearing before the liquor commissioner, Mayor Von Dee Cruse.

District 9 ballot listings wrong

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY—Sample Ballots printed for the coming District 9 School Board elections are incorrect and will be reprinted.

New ballots will be printed because of a mistake in the board's certification to the county on the order of candidate names.

The specimen ballots listed incumbents, board Secretary JoAnn Macios and board President Kelly Hogan, on top of the ballot instead of Paul Ray Bowler, a candidate who won a ballot placement lottery several weeks ago.

One candidate, Bob Bell, said he is suspicious that two members of an opposing slate of candidates, comprised of Macios,

"I believe it was done purposely. Who sent it up to Evelyn Bowles like this? That's the question."

Bob Bell

Hogan and Marty LeVall, who are running for the four open board seats, were on top of the ballots when they should not have been.

"I believe it was done purposely. Who sent it up to Evelyn Bowles like this? That's the question," Bell said, referring to Madison County Clerk Evelyn Bowles, whose office is responsible for the balloting process.

The accusation was denied by Macios, who as board secretary signed the certification verifying to the county that the ballots were correct.

"I didn't know it was to be a certain way it was presented to me that way and I signed it," Macios said. "I'm sorry he (Bell) feels that way and I'm sorry the error was made."

Bowles could not be reached for comment, but a spokesperson in Bowles' office who did not wish to be identified, verified the ballots were incorrect and new ballots have been ordered.

The spokesperson said 21 absentee voters in the district have used the incorrect ballots. She said new ballots will be sent to the absentee voters. The old ballots will be destroyed, said the spokesperson.

"The School Board certified to us wrong," said the spokesperson.

son.

The ballots should have listed the names of the city candidates first and the rural candidates second, said the spokesperson. The listing on the incorrect ballots was reversed. She said Bowles was informed of the mistake Wednesday morning and ordered a correction, which will put Bowler's name on top. Hogan's name will be listed on top of the rural candidates' list because he drew second in the lottery.

Hogan, Macios and Mac Johnson are running as rural candidates for the three, four-year seats. Bowler, along with seven other city candidates, are also running for the seats.

ANCHORAGE SENIORS participate in a yoga class offered by the Tri-City Area YMCA at The Anchorage recreation hall under the direction of Ellen Wilson. Classes are held at 9 a.m. each Monday and Thursday. There also is a class on Thursdays at 11 a.m. at the Venice Senior Center.

Steve Cann intern in secretary of state office

During the first semester of the 1987-88 school year, Steve Cann, son of Paul and Marie Cann, is participating in the Illinois Governmental Internship Program. He is an intern to Ben Fink of the Secretary of State's Office in Springfield.

Cann is a senior at Granite City High School.

The Illinois Governmental Internship Program is for high school seniors with outstanding ability and leadership and is co-sponsored by the State Board of Education and Springfield public schools.

This program is a part of the Executive Internships of America, which is in operation in 30 school districts and 21 states. Nearly 6,000 students in the country participate each year.

The students who apply for the program go through several levels of screening. They interview with their local superintendent, the Educational Service Region superintendent and, finally, with a statewide selection committee. This committee is composed of educators as well as representatives of state government.

The students who are selected as interns take a full semester's sabbatical from regular studies.

The Governmental Internship Program enables high school seniors to explore career opportunities with an executive in government agencies and related organizations.

Interns attend policy meetings, prepare memoranda and reports, and occasionally travel with their sponsor.

The interns work regular business hours with their sponsor, Monday through Thursday. On Fridays, all of the interns meet for seminars on executive behavior and organizational analysis, in which they discuss materials they have read.

They sometimes meet with officials and make site visits to programs in operation. The program is a "marriage" of the theoretical and the practical, combining best elements of classroom analysis with actual experience in the world of executives and organizations.

Crime victims' rights bolstered

Several measures designed to guarantee the rights of crime victims have been signed into law, said State Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Granite City.

"The General Assembly spent considerable time last session debating the rights of crime victims," Wolf said. "This paid off because many of our proposals have been signed by the governor."

Among the bills signed were measures to:

- Require a victim's impact statement to be considered when setting bail.
- Allow the court to order the convicted offender to pay for medical and psychological treatment needed by victims of certain sexual offenses.
- Provide for the seizure of a criminal's property to pay restitution when the victim is 65 or older.
- Establish the victim's right to know the actual amount of time an offender will spend in jail.
- Prohibit prosecutors from demanding that sexual assault victims take lie detector tests.

"Unfortunately, many area residents fall victim to crime each year," Wolf said. "In too many of these cases, the victim's rights are overlooked by those in the criminal justice system."

"The state should take whatever steps are necessary to correct this problem."

MADISON — The Yearbook Staff of Madison High School was chosen as the grand prize winner in the PICA (Performance Incentive Commitment Achievement) Award contest, sponsored by Jostens Printing and Publishing Division, Minneapolis.

The school was presented with a complete Apple Computer System and Jostens Autocopy 1 yearbook software package.

John Duncan, yearbook product manager from Minneapolis, and Ed Sugden, sales representative for the Printing and Publishing Division, based at Columbia, Ill., made the presentation to Lee Ashby, vocational education coordinator and yearbook sponsor, and Arthur Carter, school principal.

"Duncan said, 'This is a most deserving school with great cooperation between the students, staff and Jostens representative.' The school will also receive a disk to record yearbook information which will then be sent to the plant and printer, providing a direct link to the yearbook industry."

Ashby said, "I have been doing business with the Jostens company for 25 years because we receive such good service."

Nine thousand schools nationwide attempted to qualify by meeting each of the yearbook copy deadlines in time. Madison was one of 2,700 high schools that met that goal during 1987.

Former resident wins award

Dan Revell of Minneapolis, formerly of Granite City, employed as a US Sprint transmission technician, was named the first recipient of a $1,000 award through the RX (Reduced Expenses) program of the company.

The former resident designed an alarm panel at home, in his spare time, that is a refinement to the Ericsson alarm system US Sprint uses for its fiber-optic equipment.

The alarm panel warns of failure in the equipment in the technical operating centers and, in some instances, the regenerator operations.

Unlike the original alarm panel, Revell's panel immediately identifies the specific location of a problem. Drawing on his background of seismic instrumentation research and development at St. Louis University, he used reference manuals and standard formulas to develop the circuitry necessary for the panel.

It has proven to be a time-saving tool in critical situations, according to a company spokesman.

Revell graduated in 1976 from Granite City High School North. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill (Imogene) Revell of Granite City.

Trip planned to folklife festival

The Granite City Park District will sponsor a one-day trip to Hannibal, Mo., on Nov. 8 during the 10th anniversary of the annual Autumn Historic Folklife Festival, sponsored by the Hannibal Arts Council.

The festival is a celebration of the lifestyle of the middle 19th century.

There will be dozens of foods and refreshments served from wood burning stoves along the historic district of Hannibal for those shopping at stores and craft booths and for those enjoying performances on the stages and in the streets.

More than 30 crafts will be demonstrated and sold at this year's festival. They will include basket weaving, bookbinding, wood carving, cornhusk dolls, dry flower and wreath-making, herbs, jewelry, scrimshaw, whittling, making for birdcages, willow furniture and other items commonly available prior to the turn of the century.

Entertainment will include singing and playing of musical instruments common to a century ago.

In addition to a traditional old-time fiddlers' contest there will be strolling musicians as well as stage performers.

Registration for the trip will begin on Monday, Oct. 12, at 9 a.m. at the Wilson Park office.

The cost is $15 per person and does not include any meals, since food is available on the streets all day, as well as restaurants available in the area of the festival.

Park district residents are given priority, with non-residents placed on a waiting list. Residents may register no more than two persons, with proof of residence being presented for each.

Volunteers are backbone of Newsboys' campaigns

By Jim Baer
Staff affiliate

Old Newsboys Day, a tradition of supporting local children's causes since 1957, has been a success because of the generosity of St. Louis area residents and the spirit of the thousands of volunteers who brave the often cold weather to sell their newspapers.

"It is heartening to see organizations and individuals taking part year after year, manning their corners around the community," said William E. Cornelius, chairman of the 1987 Old Newsboys drive and president and chief executive officer of Union Electric Co.

During the last three decades, $3,712,301 has been distributed to hundreds of not-for-profit youth agencies statewide.

"Many volunteers return while new ones are signing up each day," Cornelius said. "From all indications, it appears that Old Newsboys Day (Nov. 19) will be the most successful drive to date."

"We have an extra incentive this year. Volunteers will be able to enjoy a warm breakfast and a hot cup of coffee, once they complete their shift. We thank Hardee's (serving the treat) for their generosity to the community."

Last year 200 children's agencies benefited from a drive that netted $238,230. They included the New City School in St. Louis, $1,200 for a gym system; the East St. Louis Jackie Robinson Khoury League, $879 for 12 dozen baseballs; the Edgewood Children's Center in Webster Groves, $1,500 to buy bicycles; and Father Dunne's Boys Home and Protectorate in St. Louis, $1,500 for recreation room furniture.

Nearly 10,000 volunteers are expected to man street corners throughout the area this year, selling the special editions composed and printed by the Suburban Journals.

Organizations joining the volunteer bandwagon include chapters of the Kiwanis, Lions, Rotary and Optimist clubs and posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Students from Country Day School, Kirkwood High School, Ursula Academy and Villa Duchesne Academy also will participate in the drive.

Anheuser-Busch Cos. will have a small army of employees on street corners, and they will be supplemented by representatives and employees from agencies and companies that include the Arts & Education Council, Ackerman Buick, the Boy Scout St. Louis Area Council, the Boys' Club of St. Louis, Boys Town of Missouri, Camp Happy Day and the Catholic Youth Council.

Also manning corners will be volunteers from several police departments in the city and county and employees of many hospitals, including Bethesda, Missouri Baptist and St. Anthony's.

Here is a list of Old Newsboys Day chairmen and the amount of money collected during the year they were at the helm of the drive:

ler's position had become very demanding, with the council regularly adding responsibilities. "I don't think we're out of line recommending the $42,000," Varadian said. He also said a good comptroller can save the city money.

But 2nd Ward Alderman Jim Miller said he thought the salary, which meant a $16,000 increase for MacTaggart, was too much.

"We're grossly overpaying for this position," Miller said. He presented a job advertisement from the Illinois Municipal League magazine that offered to pay up to $36,000 for an equivalent treasurer's position in St. Louis, Ill., a city with twice the population and three times the budget.

The city should replace department heads the same way businesses do, Miller said. "There isn't a business that wouldn't consider getting the best person at the lowest possible price," Miller said.

"I don't think we should be so free and liberal with salaries," said 1st Ward Alderman Casner Skubish.

Miller said his criticisms had nothing to do with MacTaggart's qualifications, and that MacTaggart would be a good comptroller. He asked MacTaggart if he would accept the position at a lower salary than Miklovic's.

MacTaggart said he could not because the comptroller's job requires many unpaid overtime hours and, in order to do the job adequately, he must give up a home-based private practice.

Third Ward Alderman Paul Fisk said other assistants in the city had replaced their former bosses at a lower pay.

But Fisk, after a closed meeting on the matter, voted for the salary.

Sixth Ward Alderman Judy Whitaker, who before the closed meeting was critical of the salary proposal, also voted for the salary after the closed meeting.

Seventh Ward Alderman Jeff Worthen said MacTaggart was needed in the position because of MacTaggart's familiarity with the city's finances.

Voting against the salary were: Skubish, Miller and 5th Ward Alderman Lloyd Bailey.

Voting for the measure were: Fisk, Whitaker, Varadian, Worthen, 1st Ward Alderman Everett Morlan, 3rd Ward Alderman Brett Hanke, 6th Ward Alderman Walter Milton, and 7th Ward Alderman Emerald Davies.

Fourth Ward Alderman Sharon Perjak, who was critical of the proposal at the Sept. 22 meeting, was absent as was 4th Ward Alderman Dan Partney and 2nd Ward Alderman Pat Schuman.

THE HIGH EFFICIENCY HEAT PUMP

It Cools Your Summer.

It's one money saving system for all seasons. In the summer, the heat pump saves you money as a high efficiency air conditioner. In the winter, it's the most efficient home heating method available.

When you replace your old central air conditioner with a new heat pump, you can cut your cooling costs by about 25%.

You save so much you can actually pay for the system within five years. That's why people think of their heat pump as the air conditioner that paid for itself.

It Heats Your Winter.

You'll save even more on your energy bills in the winter when the high efficiency heat pump warms your home.

You'll save because the heat pump is so efficient. It doesn't have to waste energy igniting fuel the way oil and gas furnaces do. It pulls heat out of the air (at any temperature above absolute zero) and 'pumps' it into your home.

Many heat pumps are used in conjunction with a natural gas or other heater—giving you fuel flexibility. You'll have the option to choose whichever fuel is cheapest. Right now you'll save with the electric heat pump, and perhaps in the future you'll save with natural gas. Either way, you win.

Tuition may go up at SIU

A mid-year tuition increase will be considered Thursday by the Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees when the board meets on the Edwardsville campus.

University officers said the raise is necessary to maintain quality programs in the face of reductions in state appropriations.

For full-time resident students at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville (SIUE), the proposed increase is $63.90 per quarter. The increase for graduate students would be $68.35 and for School of Dental Medicine students, $125.60.

SIUE President Earl Lazerson said that even with the increase, tuition at SIUE would still be among the lowest of any comprehensive four-year university in the state. He said that over the years, the SIU board has been the leading advocate in Illinois for low tuition, and it deserves much credit for keeping tuition rates low.

All other four-year, public universities in the state, a total of 20 institutions, are considering similar action to increase tuition at mid-year because of reductions in state appropriations.

At the University of Illinois, Northern Illinois University and Illinois State University, an increase of $150 per semester has been approved.

Lazerson said funds generated by the tuition increase would be used to restore funds needed for general public increases, library increases, utility increases, equipment purchases, and repair and maintenance activities. If these funds are not provided, it will become necessary to reallocate from the university's internal budget, possible forcing cuts in programs and personnel.

The university's current budget includes no funds for salary increases. The president said salary increases can not be considered unless additional funding is provided by state appropriations. Further, Lazerson emphasized that the reduced budget will impact the hiring of faculty in high-demand programs such as engineering, math and computer science.

State appropriations for SIUE were cut from last year's $56.5 million to $55.2 million in the current year.

Lazerson said that in addition to the tuition increase, there needs to be additional funding for the Illinois State Scholarship Commission (ISSC) for the benefit of needy students. He said that additional funding for the ISSC will be considered in the fall legislative session scheduled to begin next week.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

The purpose of a closing argument in a trial is to allow the attorney to summarize his case and attempt to convince the jury to decide the case in a particular way. Several Illinois cases stand for the proposition that closing arguments are not to make reference to a defendant's possible criminal conduct in the future. To suggest future criminal conduct could be regarded as reversible error on appeal and result in the jury's verdict being overturned.

In one recent case, a defendant was convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol after a jury trial. He was placed on probation for a period of one year. In his closing argument, the State's Attorney made this statement: "It is very important to the Defendant, and it's equally important to you and your families because it's you and I that drive the highways of Scott County day in and day out. You've got to ask yourself, do I want to meet the Defendant on the highway the way he was driving some evening? Do you want your son or daughter to meet him on the highway?" The defendant maintained the State committed reversible error by comments made in the closing argument.

The defendant's attorney objected to the comments made by the State's Attorney. He argued that the statement made reference to the defendant's possible criminal conduct in the future, namely that of driving while under the influence.

The Appellate Court noted that the State's Attorney evidently decided to "throw care to the wind" in his rebuttal argument. The Court stated that it was tempted to find reversible error in this closing argument. The Appellate Court felt that the trial evidence did not justify an inference that the defendant would engage in criminal conduct in the future and that such speculation was improper.

Should an Appellate court reverse a jury's findings when such prejudicial remarks are made? These decisions must be made on a case-by-case basis. In this matter, the Appellate Court felt that considering the closing argument as a whole, the parts presented for review did not substantially undermine the fairness of the trial as to warrant a reversal. Therefore, the Court affirmed the conviction of the defendant for driving under the influence of alcohol.

Skin care required to combat winter

With winter comes cold days, even colder nights, and the need for skin care.

Winter means drier skin on the face, hands and other parts of the body that may be exposed to the harsh cold weather. A moisturizer is important to prevent drying.

Moisturizers have several functions: By saturating the skin with moisture, they include oils or emollients, the skin becomes smoother and more pliable; some products also introduce anti-aging elements into the skin which offer one more level of protection. Professionals can help choose the best product.

Living Every Day

by Bob Thomas, President, Thomas Mortuaries Tradition — Dignity — Support

THE TURNING POINTS OF LIFE

According to the noted psychoanalyst, Erik Erikson, our lives are defined by a series of specific events or turning points.

In our infancy and early childhood years, we develop a self image based on specific events that occur during these formative years. If we experience positive, loving events from our parents and other adults whom we are dependent on to learn and to love them, if these childhood experiences are negative, we learn to mistrust and to fear adults.

When we are able to trust as infants, we develop a positive self image that carries through to adolescence and adulthood. On the other hand, if we grow up not being sure about the love of those on whom we are dependent, we may develop doubts about ourselves that can persist throughout our lifetime. In adolescence, we encounter an identity turning point in our life. During adolescence, we must move away from the control and authority of our parents and develop and achieve our own inner authority, identity and independence. Unless we are able to do this, we remain unable to develop a strong sense of who we are and a confidence in our own self worth.

Our advancing years once again present an identity crisis. In our later mature years, outgrowth, self-images, values, and life roles are relinquished and we must deal with the stresses of new experiences.

We must learn new roles with our now mature children and work out satisfying relationships with our grandchildren. We must be ready, if necessary to assume an increasing role of responsibility for the emotional and perhaps financial support of older family members. We must adapt to the physical changes brought on by the aging process and take all steps necessary to control and manage these changes.

We must cope with adjusting our living arrangements and standards to the level of our retirement income and needs.

Finally, we must adapt to maintaining mutually supportive relationships with our spouse, facing his or her inevitable death, then working through our bereavement and loneliness.

The phrase, "turning point" means just that, a pivotal point in our life, where the direction we choose to take decides our future. Growing old can be a painful experience if we allow ourselves to be overwhelmed by the changes it brings with it. It can, however, be much easier if we are able to cope with these changes in positive and creative ways. Changes are inevitable. The freedom and responsibility to decide how to deal with those changes will always be ours. It is that freedom to decide what direction to take at life's turning points that helps us to "Live Every Day."

The painter

MAKING THE MOST of the cool fall weather is Ray Tyler, 84, of 2440 Illinois Ave. Ray said the sprinkler, that watered his well-groomed lawn is fed by water that contains rust. The rust color stained his porch, so the former city construction worker decided to paint over it.

Ballot

District 9 ballot listing incorrect

"We followed a specific example from the Illinois Association of School Boards," Walmsley said. "It was simply a clerical error."

Walmsley said the board office received the incorrect ballots on Tuesday and did not know a mistake had been made until Bell called.

Bowler said he was willing to accept Walmsley's explanation, but wondered why such a mistake has not been made in the past.

"They've always put those ballots together before correctly," Bowler said. "I will give them the benefit of the doubt that it was an error."

Bowler said District 9 voters would not tolerate any attempts to manipulate the ballot.

This year's school board ballot is the first year that rural and city candidates are physically separated on the ballot. In the past, parenthesis indicated which were rural and city candidates.

The new specimen ballots will be what appears on the Nov. 3 ballot. The county clerk spoke with rural and city candidates to make sure the new sample ballots will be printed and distributed within days.

Sample ballots are distributed at the county clerk's office.

Correction

An Oct. 1 article referring to the Madison County clerk inaccurately gave her name. She is, of course, Evelyn Bowles.

Surgery patients to begin donating their own blood

GRANITE CITY — Fear of catching AIDS from blood transfusions using donor blood from general inventory has led many persons to pre-deposit their own blood for surgery and transfusions.

"With AIDS, the whole idea of autologous (self) donors has started back up again," said Pat Swecker, supervisor of St. Elizabeth Medical Center's Blood Bank. "We get an awful lot of calls on it."

Swecker said that although less than 2 percent of all reported AIDS cases have been a result of infected donor blood, many people are choosing to donate their own blood or have family members and close friends give for them.

Actually, donor blood isn't all that had. Swecker said. "All blood is tested for AIDS now, along with hepatitis, syphilis and antibodies."

The HTLV-II test was recently developed to help identify and eliminate blood donations that contain the antibody to the AIDS virus. It indicates exposure to the virus and not the actual presence of the virus.

For persons not wishing to use donor blood from a general inventory, SEMC has implemented an autologous (self) donation program.

"It is the safest possible blood they can get," Swecker said. "If they are interested in donating, they should talk to their physician at the time they're scheduling their surgery. The last donation a patient can make has to be at least 72 hours before surgery."

Autologous donations are safe, according to the American Association of Blood Banks.

There is no age restriction or minimum weight requirement for making autologous donations, but the donor's hematocrit and hemoglobin (blood value tests) must be at certain levels. The donor is not required to be on supplemental iron therapy.

The SEMC Blood Bank draws, processes, screens types and stores the units until the patient needs them or is either transferred or discharged.

"If blood is not used from an autologous donation it cannot go into a donor pool," Swecker said. "It has to be destroyed, and the reason is autologous draws don't have to meet the same criteria as for a regular blood donor. The patient could have hepatitis as far as that goes, and get his own blood back and it wouldn't hurt him. But you couldn't give it to someone else."

Besides autologous donations, another option patients have is to allow a family member, relative or close friend donate on their behalf.

Such donations, called directed donations, are offered in conjunction with the American Red Cross, St. Louis, which does the actual drawing and processing at its offices, 4050 Lindell Blvd.

"Blood from directed donations must first meet the required criteria," Swecker said. "Units found to be compatible with the patient's ABO and Rh will be held there for the intended patient's use. Any unused blood will be released into the general inventory."

A physician's referral is required for directed donations, or more information on autologous or directed donation programs, the SEMC Blood Bank can be called at 798-3273, or the American Red Cross at (314) 658-8278.

Employ Handicapped week being observed

The Granite City staff of the Illinois Department of Employment Security is encouraging observation this week of National Employ the Handicapped Week.

"The goal of the week and related efforts is to help insure that American citizens with disabilities are able to live and work at their fullest potential."

"This special week of Oct. 4-10 is a time to contribute to the accomplishments of workers with disabilities and to employers who hire them."

Library

She said she planned to establish libraries in each classroom and rotate them every two weeks.

Dake said she thought it was part of her job to offer service to Mitchell Elementary School. "We are going to be included permanently in the Hartford Library District by passing a referendum that will be on the ballot in spring 1988," Dake said.

District 9 administrators, Wadley, said plan to continue service with the Granite City library.

"We absolutely prefer to continue to serve with the Granite City Library bookmobile," Walmsley said.

Ballot blunder excuse sad

As secretary for the District 9 Board of Education and as an incumbent seeking re-election, it is no wonder Jo Ann Macios, board candidate Bob Bell with the manner in which ballots were printed.

A lottery among candidates was held and candidate Paul Ray Bowler was supposed to be first on the ballot, with Bell being third. But Macios, as board secretary, certified a listing that showed her political ally, incumbent Kelly Hogan, as first and herself as second.

Macios, responsible for keeping and signing board minutes, called her certification a mistake.

Bell thinks it was done purposefully.

As board secretary, whether it was purposeful as Bell said or accidental as Macios said, the mistake falls on Macios' shoulders.

Her action as board secretary becomes a matter of doubt.

Good, bad news about jail

The good news about the Madison County Jail is that it is being run well, according to county grand jurors. The bad news is that operating costs are going up rapidly, according to Sheriff Bob Churchill.

The grand jury wants to know why jail inmates are being housed in a better facility than the children and the elderly people confined to county homes. Churchill answers that the jail is in good shape, visually at least, because prisoners are used to help clean it.

One inmate the sheriff describes as a workaholic has cleaned all exposed copper water pipes and drains in the jail kitchen. Other prisoners daily make the terrace corridor in the cell area "so clean you could eat off it."

Jurors recommended that efforts be made at the county juvenile home to "eliminate the depressive environment." Citing the age of the Madison County nursing home and sheltered care home, they urged general modernization efforts, and also the elimination of what they suspect might be asbestos-wrapped pipes.

The detention and nursing facilities are unlikely to be dealt with immediately, but the operating budget for the jail will have to be. The sheriff estimates that for the fiscal year starting Dec. 1, he will need eight additional jailers at a cost of $276,000 to fully comply with an Illinois Department of Corrections directive to more adequately supervise prisoners.

A state inspection showed cell checks were being made at required 30-minute intervals only during evening and midnight shifts, but staff reassignments are said to have resolved that problem. Nevertheless, there is a basic disagreement between the sheriff's office, on the one hand, and county board members and the auditor's office, on the other.

hand, about budget control. Even after transfer of $30,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds, a $51,000 jail shortfall is looming for the year ending Nov. 30.

Churchill cites an increase in the jail population, underfunded sick-time pay, and the difficulty of adhering to a budget he did not prepare, upon taking office in December 1986, he named a number of former police officials to high-level administrative positions that he created. Now, he not only is focusing on expanding the staff of jailers but also is seeking extensive updating of equipment.

Further complicating such issues is the role of the state corrections department itself. This is not the first time that inspectors have tried to enforce requirements for Madison County that the state does not live up to in operating Illinois prisons. A previous controversy related to the number of prisoners per cell, while the new disagreement centers on ideal manpower levels.

Citizens are left with mixed feelings. Most favor holding the line on governmental costs and keeping the Madison County budget in balance. At the same time, they are aware that bulging Illinois penitentiaries have been the scene of increasing violence this year, victimizing both inmates and prison staff members.

Nowhere is it easy to resolve questions like how much government we need and can afford. It is particularly troublesome when the financial squeeze affects such basic needs as housing criminals and those awaiting trial.

Under the structure of our county government, responsibilities must be shared by district legislators and countywide executive officers. We are hopeful that sufficient meetings and studies will be conducted during the next few weeks so that unified planning for 1987-88 can proceed and succeed.

Opposes zoning variance by city

To the editor:

On Oct. 14 the Board of Appeals will meet to consider a request for a variance in the Zoning Ordinance to allow direct access to a parking lot from the alley. This request concerns the apartments at 27th and Adams.

These apartments have been in the news for over one year. The parking lot and drainage were not finished according to approved plans. Now C & R Investments has the unmitigated gall to ask the Board of Appeals and ultimately the City Council to grant them a variance.

Why should we, the taxpayers, pay for an apartment building driveway?

Our taxes are used to maintain the alleys. Sixteen extra cars daily in and out of one alley with cause a lot of deterioration.

The builder of any construction in the future will think he should also be granted this privilege. This is a precedent we cannot afford to start. So, I urge you to contact your alderman and ask them to vote "No" pertaining to this issue.

We pay enough taxes for normal maintenance of streets and alleys. Why should we throw away our tax dollars, so a company can have an easy way out? They'll be saving their money, while spending ours.

SANDY SHAW
1537 Rodger Ave.

Politicians don't think for us

To the editor:

Under our current form of government, we elect individuals to represent us at various levels of government. I have read where some influential politicians intend to endorse or tell us how to vote on candidates for offices in upcoming elections. This upsets me greatly since they are elected to represent us and not to tell us who to vote for.

These politicians would do well to just do their jobs representing our viewpoints and let us make up our own views on which candidates we want to vote for.

I'll always vote against any politician who is so presumptuous as to feel he has the right and the responsibility to dictate to us how we should vote. I'd rather make my choices myself, without outside political influence. I make all of my other decisions in life without their help and I don't need or want their help in making my decision on candidates.

P.A. VOYLES

Senators should represent us

To the editor:

I have recently read that U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon intends to be active in the selection of a candidate for Congress in the 21st District. This disturbs me greatly.

We hired Sen. Dixon and Sen. Simon to represent us in Washington, not to select candidates for us. The public is perfectly capable of deciding who we want to represent us without having a senator telling us who to vote for.

I say let the congressional candidates prove who is the more capable. Let the candidates debate the issues and we, the voters, decide who is best qualified.

Dixon, a resident of this district, certainly has a right to his own vote, but why won't he vote like the rest of us — in the privacy of the voting booth?

We, the residents and voters of the entire district, want to make this very important decision ourselves. We don't want backroom political influence.

Urges opposition to variance

To the editor:

The Board of Appeals has been asked to consider a request for a variance to allow property at 1538 Johnson Road to be zoned C-1 (office commercial) rather than R-2 (residential).

This is an attempt to circumvent the zoning ordinance. This property does not even come close to meeting the one-acre minimum requirement to start a new commercial district. One person is trying to disrupt a quiet residential area with his business.

A brand new office building is ready for occupancy but not two blocks away. Should we be burdened with commercial property next to our homes because it's cheaper to buy residential property and turn it into commercial?

Let's talk to our aldermen. Let them know that you don't want commercial property in your back yard.

Goetz trial 'continuing'

The rafters still ring with "racism," allegations that Bernard Goetz was found not guilty because he is white.

Jurors are trying to put the trial behind them, but four of them told a Phil Donahue audience that they were "insulted" to be accused of racism by people who were not in that jury room, who did not know the careful manner in which the jurors kept their judgment free of black and white. There were blacks on the jury, and yet the decision was unanimous.

The Donahue audience was almost unanimously in favor of the verdict.

The jury had been charged to determine whether Goetz's fear of the four who confronted him was "reasonable fear." New York University law professor Stephen Gillers says, "Reasonableness is situational." Would a reasonable person, having been mugged twice and physically abused as Goetz had been, would he respond as Goetz responded?

The jury said yes. But such an inevitable polarization that the two black jurors are now refusing public appearances.

In New York City subways the number of robbery victims last year was about evenly divided, black and white, about 2,000 of each.

But the robbers were overwhelmingly black — by a ratio of 30-to-one.

So subway riders will admit that this is a factor in their fear, and might "reasonably" have contributed to Goetz's fear.

And the fact that one of the youths delivered several frightening outbursts in the courtroom — though it was not supposed to be considered by the jury — did tend to justify the "reasonableness" of Goetz's response.

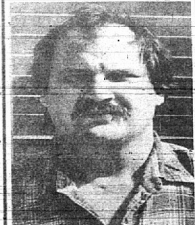

Is it now open season on anybody who appears menacing? Hardly. After what Goetz has gone through, no "reasonable" person is likely to go looking for trouble.

Innes, the "reasonable" voice of the Congress of Racial Equality, is convinced that the Goetz jury was not influenced by race and that "if those four boys had been sitting on the subway doing their algebra homework, Goetz would never have pulled that gun."

Should Bork be on high court?

With the Senate Judiciary Committee scheduled to vote Tuesday on the confirmation of Judge Robert H. Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court, do you favor or oppose Bork being seated on the high court, considering what you have read and heard during the past several weeks?

More blessed to give gifts?

They've gone too far this time. This was the scene in an upscale shopping mall/tourist area in Kansas City last weekend, confronting customers at the door of a pricey gift shop was a life-sized cutout of a little yuppie girl. It had a caption:

"What did you bring me?" The child wore a perfect little preppy dress and no trace of a smile. We aren't talking about a wide-eyed, sugar-plum dancing expression. The kid had all the warmth of a bank robber. Gimme.

The well-heeled shoppers who paid $140 per night to stay in the adjoining hotel probably were perfect targets. They likely had plenty of money and more than a little guilt at being away again from their little yuppette. Maybe a $60 trinket or two would make up for the lost quality time.

Poor kid. I'd be there. My parents used to take trips and leave us behind. They did that at least every 10 years. Generally it was to some AT&T exotic spot like Gus' Roadside Motel, which was located near a fishing lake.

Gus gave free minnows and use of a boat with every room. Just try to find free minnows at one of those fancy $140 places today.

The vacation spots couldn't have been more dissimilar. Then why was that question, posed by a cardholder kid, so familiar? Could it have sprung from my own tiny lips back then?

I would be less than honest not to recall asking the same thing when that '53 Ford returned from the fishing trip.

Somewhere it was different then. In the 1950s, we asked timidly, hopefully, respectfully. We sure didn't do it with a demanding frown on our faces.

Our parents always had something for us, too. Our standard gift was a small bar of wrapped soap, courtesy of Gus, and maybe a smaller bottle of what they called toilet water.

I was quite alarmed when I first heard that expression, but later they explained to us that it was an elegant fragrance—something like Evening in Piedmont—for my sisters to spray on their necks and wrists.

My, how our little faces must have shone when our chubby fingers reached out for those treasures.

It's odd how the exact same question, posed by a kid whose mother probably forced into beauty contests at age 2, could seem so offensive a generation later. But it was.

I decided to try an experiment. I emptied my hotel bathroom of all the miniature soap packages, shower caps anditty bitty shampoo bottles I could find. Next I went down and bought a couple of ridiculously overpriced gifts in the mall, then headed for home to see which set of gifts would have the most staying power.

My kids are still playing with their cellophane shower caps.

To the cardboard kid, wherever she is, I've got the answer to "What did you bring me?"

Here, kid, is a tiny little package of soap. Now go see if you can scrub that scowl off your face.

Child care worthy investment

Linda Grant of Miami left her two young sons home alone only once so she could go to work. But that one time led to tragedy. She had placed her two boys on Florida's waiting list for child care assistance, but while he waited, she relied on friends and relatives to care for her children.

On Nov. 6, 1986, Linda Grant was unable to find a baby-sitter. She left the boys in a bedroom and went to work. Six hours later, she returned and found them suffocated and burned to death in the family's clothes dryer.

The Miami News wrote: "There are hundreds, maybe thousands, more tragedies waiting to happen in Dade County alone, in every home where young children are left to fend for themselves. They're not latchkey kids. They're latching kids, locked inside for the day, by parents who can't afford day care, can't afford not to work, and can't get government assistance."

Our country, unlike other Western industrialized nations, has no comprehensive child care law.

So far, the federal government has not taken a leadership role. The current administration has asked Congress to cut almost every program that helps parents meet child care needs or improves the quality of child care.

In 1984, 61 percent of all women with children under 18 worked outside the home. In the next decade, the need for safe, affordable, quality child care will continue to grow.

Poor and low-income families cannot bear child care costs alone.

The typical cost of full-time child care is about $3,000 a year for one child—or one-third of the poverty-level income for a family of three.

A public and business investment in child care would help save the much larger costs of unemployment and welfare dependency. Workers who know their children are receiving good care are better employees.

And care should be more than safe and custodial. It should enrich, particularly so for children from disadvantaged backgrounds.

That kind of care saves money down the road in preventing school dropouts and teen pregnancy, and paying for crime control and other social services.

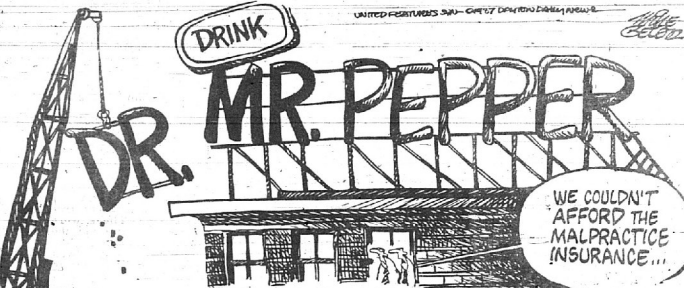

In Chicago, an innovative undertaking may give inspiration for other cities. The Beethoven Project is providing benefits and services to mothers and their babies who live in the Robert Taylor Homes, the world's largest public housing project.

For children born this year, the program will supply intensive care and stimulus until they are 5, as well as additional help for their mothers, many of them teen-agers.

The evidence from other somewhat similar experiments is that the long-term payoff will be huge.

The Beethoven Project is largely the inspiration of Irving B. Harris, a Chicago businessman who has done much to help economically deprived children and teen-agers.

Nothing is more important to our future than our children. Our best investment is to ensure they receive the finest in care and education.

Tobacco lovers fights research

Scientists have been investigating cigarette smoking and health for more than 30 years. The number of individual studies, both in the United States and other countries, is very large.

The conclusions reached are very decisive, and show that smoking is extremely bad for a person's health.

Even though that aspect of smoking is well established, new research is now under way on the effects of smoking on non-smokers. An attempt is being made to link some of the health problems of non-smokers with environmental cigarette smoke, that is, smoke in the home, in the office, and in the workplace. The tobacco industry is vigorously opposing these endeavors.

For example, a physicist who works for the Environmental Protection Agency published several studies involving environmental cigarette smoke and the onset of cancer. A U.S. representative sent a letter to the head of the EPA denouncing the physicist for personal misconduct.

This has put enormous pressure on the physicist, who must now undergo a full-scale ethics inquiry. The tobacco industry is conveying the message that it will make things difficult for any scientist attacking smoking.

The tobacco industry also has staged seminars in which scientific personnel, who work for the tobacco industry, present scientific papers on various cigarette smoking subjects. The participants then proceed to criticize each other's findings and in general show that the work is invalid. It appears to be an attempt to show that research in the field of cigarette smoking is highly questionable.

A Japanese scientist published a scientific study involving the wives of smokers and non-smokers.

He concluded that the wives of smokers had about double the chance of getting lung cancer as the wives of non-smokers. Not only was he attacked in the journal in which he originally published his paper, but full page ads were placed in newspapers around the United States, denouncing his efforts.

An individual scientist, like the Japanese researcher, has no way of combating an expensive media ad campaign of this type.

O. I'm interested in making some small investments. However, I have never made investments before, and the language is rather new to me. I've been reading financial journals, and there's one term which keeps cropping up that puzzles me. Can you tell me what "government obligations" are?

A. A government obligation is, as the term implies, instruments of the United States Government public debt. These include such things as Treasury bills, U. S. Government notes and bonds as well as Retirement plan bonds. These instruments are, in fact, fully backed by the government, as opposed to U. S. Government agency securities. Although government obligations are attractive due to federal backing, you may find some equally attractive investment opportunities closer to home—backed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation—the FDIC. They're available through your bank and your banker would be happy to tell you about them.

New voices on the air

By Scott Simon
Staff affiliate

New names have surfaced at various broadcast outlets the past couple of weeks. Personnel changes have been made at KSD-FM (93.7) after the station changed its music format.

The new program director is Jim Morrison, who came from WQXI-FM in Atlanta, a station with a reputation of developing new music programming. Morrison calls KSD-FM's format "contemporary album rock."

"Our goal is to play current music and older releases that have an appeal with an audience that's aimed hard core at a young adult audience," Morrison said. "But we're really watching and listening to new albums - we want to be early with new products. There's a lot of great music not being played, and we want to be the first to get it on and keep it on. That's why we call ourselves 'the best music mix.'"

Two announcers didn't fit in with the new format. Gono are Bill Garcia, who left for Boston, and Gary Ross, who remains in town to do free-lance commercial work. Mike Waterman was moved from a regular weekday to a weekend spot.

With J.C. Corcoran anchoring morning drive, KSD's new weekday lineup includes holdover Kris Kelly, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., Morrison from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., newcomer Jeff McCarter, also from Atlanta's WQXI-FM, from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m., newcomer Chuck Jeffries from WLWQ, Boston from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., hold-over Paul Arka from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. and Mark Christian from 1 a.m. to 6 a.m.

The first indication of success, or failure, will be in mid-October when the summer ratings estimates are released.

Sister station KUSA-AM (550) has a new weekday afternoon team of Chase and Sanborn who debuted two weeks ago. No additional information was available at press time.

State news

Calling all collectors with old newspapers

The Illinois State Historic Preservation Agency is searching the state for newspaper collections. The state project is part of a national effort to locate and preserve millions of newspapers published from 1690 to the present. Survey forms will be mailed to organizations and institutions; but individuals who hold private collections are urged to contact Linda Oelheim, project researcher at the Illinois State Historical Library, Old State Capitol, Springfield, IL 62701, or call (217) 783-1836.

Mock battle highlights historic encampment

Mock battles involving authentically garbed 18th century units, period crafts and performances of historic music will be the order of the day as the Illinois Department of Conservation re-creates the Illinois Territory of the late 1700s for the Fort Massac Encampment, Oct. 17-18 at Fort Massac State Park, Metropolis, at the state's southern tip on U.S. Route 45 in Massac County. Activities will begin at 10 a.m. each day and close with a retreat ceremony at 4:30 p.m. A highlight will be a mock battle and tactical demonstration, set for 3 p.m. both days. The Colonial Fife and Drum Corps of Alton will perform at noon.

Bonds show strength of state, governor says

Gov. James R. Thompson said the state has sold its seventh successive general obligation bond below 8 percent. The latest sale was for $100 million.

"This was an excellent sale and shows that the financial community remains confident in the state's ability to manage its finances," Thompson said.

The bonds will fund $62 million in capital development projects, $24 million in transportation projects, $13 million in anti-pollution grants and $1 million in school construction projects.

State stocks lakes with rainbow trout

About 70,000 rainbow trout will be stocked at 33 state sites this month for the start of trout fishing to begin at 5 a.m. Oct. 17 at most sites. Anglers must have a fishing license and salmon stamp, unless exempt by age or disability.

Those sites include Highland Old City Lake in Madison County; Jones Park Pond, East St. Louis, and Frank Holten State Park Main Lake, both in St. Clair County; Beaver Dam Lake, Macoupin County; and Department of Transportation Lake, Springfield, Sangamon County. For information, 289-1336 may be called.

Book lists businesses of women, minorities

The 1987 edition of the Illinois Minority and Female Business Enterprise Directory is now available. The publication identifies more than 4,000 minority- and women-owned businesses.

The directory will assist public and private agencies in complying with federal and state laws mandate minority or female vendor-contractor participation. Limited copies are available for $20 by contacting Cindy Baron at (217) 785-4321 or the Illinois Small Business Hotline at 1-800-232-2923.

Notifications required on nuclear waste sites

Senate Bill 310, newly signed, requires additional written notice for local and state officials by the Department of Nuclear Safety when an area is being considered for a permanent, low-level waste disposal facility site.

The law goes into effect Jan. 1, 1988.

School, college balloting will be crucial

Soon (Nov. 3), school district and college policy-setters will be elected. It is important that voters participate, and wisely.

We used to have a list of qualities that seemed necessary for effective board service. They boiled down to genuine concern for the students and the schools, rather than advancing the board member or a particular group.

It's a matter of being selfless, rather than selfish. Knowing something about business efficiency, and doing one's "homework" by reading pertinent reports, also help a board member immensely.

To help new or continuing board members do a good job in 1987-88 and beyond, the Illinois Association of School Boards' Southwestern Division has scheduled a semi-annual conference and dinner meeting for Wednesday, Oct. 14. It will be held at Belleville Township High School West for members and prospective members in Madison, St. Clair, Monroe, Jersey and Randolph counties.

Speaking on the role of the Illinois State Board of Education will be Ted Sanders and Tom Burroughs. Sanders has been the state superintendent of education since January 1985 and Burroughs is the state board chairman. Former secretary and president of the Collinsville school board, Burroughs has been on the state board since 1981.

Responsibilities of school board membership will be emphasized at the conference. Among the sessions will be one focusing on "boardmanship" duties, powers and challenges. The school board association is a voluntary service organization of 895 Illinois boards. Its office is in Springfield and Lombard.

One of the most crucial November 1987 elections involves the many-county, Belleville Area College.

Regional Roundup

By Bill Winter

When I and others served on committees years ago to study which college district to join, it seemed obvious: BAC was being soundly run and Lewis and Clark in Godfrey was encountering many problems.

Lewis and Clark, fortunately, became a fine district, aided by the later leadership of Wilbur Trimpe, who still later provided helpful counsel at BAC's Granite City Campus.

BAC has had many good years, including those when Avery Schermer of Granite City was chairman of the college board. He is among those on the ballot this fall. Unfortunately, an anti-Granite City campaign is being waged by some BAC candidates, who are trying to picture Avery as an advocate of high taxes.

The impact of education and training is being spotlighted this week by the Illinois Department of Rehabilitation Services. DoRS cites a new nationwide survey showing that 90 percent of employers rate the performance of disabled workers as good to excellent but that only 45 percent had hired a disabled person in the past year.

In Illinois, two out of three people with disabilities remain unemployed.

Action is being taken to upgrade their skills, and there is a statewide job placement hotline, 1-800 JOBS. NOW that employers may call for referrals of applicants within 72 hours.

While on the topic of education, it is interesting to note that Burl Ives, famous folk singer and actor, will be the parade marshal for the homecoming parade Saturday, Oct. 17, at Eastern Illinois University, Charleston.

He will also attend the IU-Indiana State football game at 1:30 p.m. and lead the audience in singing the national anthem and the IU Alma Mater.

Tues, now 78, attended Eastern in 1927-30. Born in a neighboring county, he got an honorary doctor of humane letters degree from IU in 1985. This year, he is one of six who will get distinguished alumnus awards.

The late Carl Sandburg of Illinois, a noted writer and historian, called Ives the "mightiest troubador of this or any other century."

Aves played football for the Panthers, left guard, to be exact, and won the Academy Award for best supporting actor in the 1958 film, "The Big Country."

He is national honorary chairman of IU's five-year $5 million Tenth Decade campaign. But my first thought when his name comes up in conversation is that he was the singer who popularized "The Blue-Tailed Fly."

An awful and needless acronym, SWILL, was referred to four times in the state press release announcing signing of a law creating the Southwestern Illinois Development Authority. We deleted the acronym from our story, but some papers did not.

Dennis Grubaugh, a staff affiliate, wrote a column on the topic and said the state could just as easily have chosen SILLY, SORRY, SO-N-SO, SWELL, SEEDY, SWEETLY or TWENTY.

He concluded, "You can even find SHOOT AUTHOR if you look close enough. Come to think of it, that very well might be the solution."

State outlaws knife

Just signed, Senate Bill 1037 adds the "ballistic knife" to the weapons defined under Illinois' Uniform Code of Weapons statutes. The "ballistic knife" is a newly designed, lethal weapon said to use a three-pronged, enforcement officials and the general public. The law takes effect Jan. 1, 1989.

Hospice conference Oct. 15

The fifth annual hospice conference of Southwestern Illinois will be held Thursday, Oct. 16, from 8:15 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. in the University Center at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The conference, designed for anyone working with the terminally ill and grieving persons in hospitals, hospice programs and long-term care facilities, is sponsored by the Gerontology Program at SIUE, Hospice of Madison County, Belleville Hospice, the Hospice Unit in Wood River, and the Four Fountains Hospice in Belleville.

Workshops will deal with such issues as the care of persons with AIDS, ethical issues in health care, spiritual aspects of care, and coping skills for the caregiver.

Marcia E. Lattanzi, a psychotherapist, educator and consultant from Boulder, Colo., will deliver the keynote speech.

The Rev. Robert J. Chenoweth, staff chaplain at the St. Louis University Medical Center, the Rev. Nancy Livingston Goff, pastor of St. John United Church of Christ in Wood River; and Joellen Sheerin, staff nurse at Barnes Hospital and board member of the St. Louis Effort for AIDS.

The registration fee is $35 if the application is postmarked by Oct. 8. Special fees are available for students.

- 2) Would you propose or support a policy requiring the board to accept the superintendent's recommendation for jobs, except in such cases wherein the board has additional information to indicate the recommended person is not qualified for the job?

3) Would you favor a policy change to allow parents to photograph their children when the students receive diplomas, rather than allowing only a professional photographer to take the photo?

Candidates discuss district's deficit

DISTRICT 9
DOWN $2 MILLION

Candidates for the District 9 School Board have differing views on dealing with the $2.4 million deficit budget for fiscal 1988.

The budget shows projected expenses at $30,558,552 and anticipated revenues of $28,148,055, a difference of $2,410,497.

Norm Owca, the district's finance director, said two-thirds of the deficit was planned due to the use of money from the sale of old school buildings to pay for improving open schools. The other third is because of state aid cuts by Gov. Jim Thompson of more than $1 million. This could change if the legislature overrides Thompson's cuts this fall, Owca said.

All projected deficits will be made up by using reserves in district fund balances, Owca said. Approximately $500,000 in savings will be spent in lieu of raising taxes. Rate reductions are shown in the buildings, transportation, bond and interest, working cash, and tort immunity funds.

Why tax more than you need?

The district in the past has used surplus funds instead of raising taxes, Owca said. He said November's election has no effect on spending funds or lowering the rates.

District 9 teachers are in the second year of a two-year contract and there is a salary reopening clause. Negotiations will begin after a district audit is completed this month, said Shirley Stoll, teacher's union president. Teachers are waiting for the audit to be completed so they can complete their financial analysis of the district, Stoll said. They are also studying the budget and waiting for the legislative override session, she said.

December is the deadline for completing pay negotiations. Some candidates believe part of the budget negotiations haven't started and he doesn't know what the teachers may demand. The district will still have surplus funds next year, Owca said, but it is unknown how much.

Some candidates believe part of the financial problems lie with the cuts.

"I feel that we were abandoned by Gov. Thompson when he made the educational cuts in this present budget," said Robert Bell. "I think we can push for legislation that will reinstate these through our representatives in the General Assembly, and until this is done we will have to watch what our monies are being spent on in this current fiscal year."

"If a legislative override session is called on Nov. 6 by Illinois lawmakers, the shortage caused by reductions in revenues could change in favor of the school district," said Roy Koberna.

"The projected deficit of approximately $668,000 in the education fund will be the problem to deal with if the Illinois Legislature fails to restore the cut of approximately $887,000 during the upcoming override session," said Jo Ann Macios.

"When the board received word of the governor's cut, we gave instructions to the superintendent and administration to begin a review and analysis of cost reduction measures and bring their recommendations to the board at the earliest possible time," Macios said. "The board and administration must review these recommendations and work together to solve the problem."

"Petition the governor and legislature to live up to their commitment to education and fund the programs they have encouraged and mandated," said Dewey Melton.

Kelly Hogan said he has his own ideas what to do with the deficit, the education fund due to Thompson's cuts.

"But, since we pay a full-time staff of educational administrators to operate the district, I will await the governor's final determination of the reduction of education funds and the district's administrators recommendation of how the deficit, if any, should be removed so the entire Board of Education can review it before supplying input."

Paul Ray Bowler suggested the district prepare a five-year projection of all cost and expenditures.

"However I want to make one thing clear. I am totally against lowering any of our educational standards of our teachers or the students in our school district," Bowler said.

Robert Douglas said he would recommend that all departments (See BUDGET, Page 4C)

In their own words

Quotes from District 9 candidates

District 9 School Board candidates gave various answers to questions posed to them by the Press-Record/Journal.

Candidates were asked:

1) To comment on the district's budget.

2) If they would propose or support policies requiring board members to obtain any time a relative or campaign contributor is brought before the board as a potential district hire.

3) If they would favor requiring board members to accept the superintendent's recommendation for jobs.

4) If they favor policies allowing parents to photograph their children at graduation when the students receive diplomas.

5) Changing auditing firms every three years.

6) Revising the graduation policy to remove the requirement of attending graduation practice.

The following are some answers given by the candidates.

On the deficit

"We should contact our local representatives and ask for monetary help," Debbie Holt-Wilkerson said.

"I believe pressure should be brought upon the state legislature to restore the cuts made in education at the primary and secondary school levels," Rose Schwager said. "Education is being used by the governor as a political pawn for pressure for a state tax increase."

"I would ask the administration to work with the board to provide options to eliminate the deficit," said Mack Johnson. "I would want these options to be based on guidelines that would least affect the children's education. I feel it is important for the board to keep the community up to date on the entire process so there are no surprises."

On the photo policy

"The high school policy that governs the taking of pictures was and is for administrative purposes," said Kelly Hogan. "Any one who has attended a graduation ceremony clearly understands that it would be impossible to allow parents, family and friends to stand in front of the stage to take pictures during the actual ceremony."

"Parents or guardians should have the option of taking their own child's graduation picture or have a professional photographer chosen either by them or the one the board contracts with," said Paul Ray Bowler. "There would have to be some logistic problems worked out so that the ceremonies would not take any longer, but I think that all of it can be worked out."

On graduation

"Requirement to attend graduation practice is a must," said Holt-Wilkerson. "If the requirement were not there, then many would not attend and that would be a loss to the night of the graduation. I do feel however that review on an individual case basis by a committee might be an alternative."

"Throughout our lives and our children's lives, we are all faced with rules that regulate our daily activities," said Roy Koberna. "Some rules are not as popular as others, therefore people try to revise them. The requirement of attending graduation practice currently in effect is one of those rules. I believe that any revision of this particular rule could cause more disruptions to graduations in the future."

"I would not support a policy to remove the requirement of attending graduation practice," said Robert Douglas. "But some exceptions should be made of the requirement such as if a student is sick or has a doctor's appointment."

"There may be some circumstances that is completely out of the student or his parent's control and that student may not be able to attend the graduation practice," Bowler said. "To penalize that student who after four of the hardest years of his life both educationally and emotionally, by not letting him graduate with his class, should be classified as cruel and unusual punishment."

On abstaining

"I feel you are there to represent the people that elected you and if you feel that there may be some problem in a vote to be taken involving a relative or friend you are the one that will have to live with that decision," Robert Bell said.

"Any time a relative would be

Madison: The Man and the Constitution

By David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

For a Founding Father, James Madison's public profile has never quite measured up to his monumental achievements. For years, the fourth president has been overshadowed by fond memories of his vivacious wife, Dolley, and by the towering esteem held for his Virginia neighbor, Thomas Jefferson.

But this year, as the bicentennial of the Constitution is celebrated from coast to coast, Madison is the man in news. It was his keen intellect and steady determination after all that accomplished miracles in Philadelphia that hot, humid summer of 1787. At last, the nation seems to be getting acquainted with the "Father of the Constitution," a man who had the vision and political skills to forge a system of government that had never existed before.

Madison's low 20th-century profile seems traceable to his quiet reserve as well as to the mistaken belief revealed in one recent national poll that it was an enterprising Jefferson who engineered the Constitutional Convention. Jefferson, in fact, was in Paris on diplomatic business that summer.

By today's media standards, Madison "was not what we would call a charismatic leader," observes A. E. Dick Howard, a University of Virginia law professor and chairman of a recent Smithsonian Institution symposium. "Constitutional Rights and Responsibilities." Only 5 feet, 8 inches tall, Madison had none of the presence and prowess of George Washington; his prose lacked the bite of Thomas Paine's pamphlets, and in an age when Patrick Henry turned public speaking into a political asset, Madison's voice was weak and faltering.

At a low point after college, the young Virginian was at loose ends, uncertain about a career (law seemed "coarse and dry") and during one period so overtaken by a nervous disorder that he confided that he did not "expect a long or healthy life." Then he discovered religion — the issue of religious liberty, a lifelong crusade, it became a pillar of the Bill of Rights.

Anglican persecutions of Baptists and other dissenters truly distressed Madison. Howard explains. The issue began to draw the young Madison out of his own dependency into public life. By 1787, the 35-year-old's dominating spirit at Philadelphia would move Georgia delegate William Pierce to record: "Every person seems to acknowledge his greatness. He blends together the profound politician, with the Scholar."

Madison always did his homework. He arrived in the City of Brotherly Love, then the nation's largest town with 45,000 people, fully prepared to confront the economic and political havoc that threatened to tear apart the fragile nation that had arisen tattered but proud from the Revolutionary War.

The nation had become so divided that Jefferson feared "the states will go to war with each other in defiance of Congress; one will call in France to our aid, another Great Britain, and so we shall have all the wars of Europe brought to our own doors." Already New York was taxing domestic ships passing its Sandy Hook light-house.

At his family home, Montpelier, near Charlottesville, Va., Madison had devoured the 200 or so books sent by Jefferson from Paris: political theory, economics, European and ancient history. Authors such as Plutarch, Montesquieu, Locke, Hobbes, Madison understood that history could yield generalizations about human nature and suggest guidelines for governing. He concluded that if the states did not set up a strong central government, disaster would overtake them all.

Trade was the trouble. With states treating each other like foreign powers, rivalries for market shares of goods and agriculture had grown intense. But the insipid Articles of Confederation of 1777 provided no regulatory solutions. Moreover, every one had their eyes on a new frontier, the West. Among them, Madison dreamed that much of this trade would pass through Virginia down the James or the Potomac rivers.

James Madison

Madison believed the major problem lay with the state legislatures — not the people of the states. When it suited them, the states simply ignored the resolutions of the Continental Congress, refused to pay their share of expenses or to send delegates. Sometimes weeks would go by with no decisions from Congress because it lacked a quorum. Inflated paper money issued by the states was wrecking public confidence in government, notes author William Peters in A More Perfect Union.

Men like fellow Virginian Patrick Henry had become thorns in Madison's side. Opposing a centralized government, Henry argued that since Americans had just fought a war against a distant, powerful ruler, it made no sense to give up the new experiment with local rule for "something so new it wants a name," as he put it. Henry refused to travel to Philadelphia, sniffing, "I smell a rat."

While the delegates gathered,

Madison worked out the details of his Virginia Plan whose essentials — a strong national government, three branches of power, and the separation of authority — would survive heated summer debates over the states' place in the proposals. Key to Madison's thinking was the idea that "you must first enable the government to control the governed; and in the next place oblige it to control itself."

As the eloquent Virginia Governor Edmund Randolph presented the plan, Madison recorded the proceedings, an unofficial task he thought necessary considering the lack of details about earlier republics. "It happened that — was not absent a single day nor more than a casual fraction of an hour in any day, so that I could not have lost a single speech, unless a very short one," he later wrote.

After a month of inconclusive deliberations, Dr. Benjamin Franklin, aching with gout, expressed impatience with the proceedings. Noting the lack of governmental role models, both classical and European, Franklin asked why "we have not hitherto conceived of humbly applying to the Father of lights to illuminate our understandings."

In the end, the Founding Fathers worked out a solution that enlisted the support of ordinary voters against entrenched politicians like Henry, points out historian Joyce Appleby of the University of Southern California, Los Angeles. "Their constitutional plan limited the power of citizens acting through representatives in their legislatures, but it guaranteed their rights as individuals pursuing their own interests."

The conflict over state powers flared early during the convention, on May 31, when it was proposed that members of the House be elected by the people rather than by the state legislatures. Roger Sherman of Connecticut coolly asserted, "The people should have as little to do as may be about the government. They lack information and are constantly liable to be misled."

Madison then rose. "I consider the popular election of one branch of the national legislature as essential to every plan of a free government," he began. "I think, too, that the great fabric to be raised will be more stable and durable if it rests on the solid foundation of the people themselves."

Madison and his allies, however, were not to prevail when the small states insisted on equal rather than proportional representation in the Senate, and his plan for a council that could veto state laws was defeated. But by late August the convention turned to specific restrictions on the states — they were forbidden to make treaties, coin money and tax imports or exports without consent of Congress, for example. Madison in effect had won his point. The states would not act as sovereign powers.

Appointed to the board in June 1981, he was elected once again in 1983. A 1957 graduate of Granite City High School, Melton received a B.S. in mathematics from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville in 1963. He has been employed by IBM as a senior systems engineer for the past 23 years.

Melton and his wife, Karen, are the parents of four children.

Beverly Schutzenhofer

Beverly (Whitaker) Schutzenhofer, 48, 2201 Delmar Ave., graduated from Granite City High School in 1957 and from Summers College of Commerce in 1962.

in the district to cut back on their budgets and a freeze on hiring until at least the end of the school year "unless the job is pertinent to the education of our children."

"In the end though, some school programs may have to be cut back," Douglas said. "Therefore I would recommend to the board to hold several public meetings to see what programs the electors want to pay for and which ones they want to cutback."

Beverly Schutzenhofer said the district should cut spending and better manage its funds.

considered for a position I would abstain," said Jo Ann Macios. "I also would abstain anytime I felt there was a conflict of interest."

However, to abstain because one does not want to make the final decision is unacceptable. Any abstain vote other than due to a conflict of interest should be considered a "no vote."

"Yes, I would propose and support a district policy that requires board members to abstain any time a relative or campaign contributor is brought before the board as a potential hire," said Schwager. "I would also like a time period of approximately six months to a year before a previous, or present school board member could be employed in the local school district."

On auditing "It is not so much to have a policy to change the auditing firm every three years," Douglas said, "but to have the firm send a different group of auditors every one or two years. This would help the district with new ideas continuously."

"I would very much like to see fresh ideas; however, I would not necessarily vote for a change just for the sake of change," LeVault said.

"I do not see where an automatic change of an audit firm would be necessary just for the sake of change," Macios said. "If an audit firm has been doing an excellent job handling the school finances, changing to another firm may bring about delays and other unforeseen problems."

Double coupons dropped by Schnucks, National

By Janice Denham

To double or not to double was the question facing other major supermarket chains in the St. Louis area Monday after Schnucks Markets Inc. announced it would end its double-couponing program Oct. 11 and lower many prices on dairy, grocery, frozen food and health and beauty products.

"National Super Markets was close behind, but announced Monday its stores will give its customers an additional week to cash in their coupons at double face value—extending the deadline for its coupon program through Oct. 18.

Dierberg's Markets have pledged to match the Schnucks' price reductions as well and make a decision on how to proceed beyond that within a week. "We will continue to monitor the shopping situation to see if we will continue to double coupons," said Roger Dierberg, owner of Dierberg's Markets Inc. "We want to see what else happens in the overall environment."

At Cross, regional vice president of National, said prices matching those at Schnucks would be in place within 10 days—many of them as early as this week. "Our customers won't pay a penalty to shop in our stores," he said.

Dierberg said Schnucks led local stores into the double-coupon program almost three years ago and that until Monday his stores had not found it necessary to re-evaluate the practice or consider its discontinuation.

By Monday afternoon Dierberg's and National had received several calls from consumers asking them to continue the program.

The change at the Schnucks stores came about as a result of consumer research performed in August, said Sue Gibson, communications specialist for Schnucks.

"The figure we got out from it, was that approximately 35 percent, or possibly even fewer, of the consumers were using coupons," she said.

"We decided that by our stores lowering prices, all the consumers then could benefit. Double coupons will be in effect until next Sunday, so that customers can plan to take advantage of it."

Gibson said one of the consumer complaints about using coupons is that it is time-consuming to plan to use them.

Aside from closing its stores at midnight Sunday and reopening at noon Monday to allow time to make immediate price changes, there was not much that could be done to prepare for the change of policy, Gibson said.

Cross expects to see a lot of coupons change hands in the checkout lanes this week. "And despite opposition from some shoppers about dropping the double-coupon policy, he thinks the overall effect will be decidedly lower prices because of a better overall business climate."

Cross noted, however, that even after Kroger left the St. Louis market, other grocery chains did not experience a surge in profits.

Dierberg said the practice of doubling coupon values is not a procedure peculiar to food stores in this area.

"I think St. Louis is generally in the mainstream in market practices; the fact that it has not gone off the doubling up to now is not unique," he said. "In the event that St. Louis goes off, that doesn't make us unique, either."

Gibson said a new study will likely be commissioned to study the impact of the changes.

Bell refunds $2 million

About one out of every two Illinois Bell customers will see a one-time $1.37 credit on October telephone bills.

The credits, totaling $2.25 million, are part of a 1986 out-of-court settlement that ended a lawsuit challenging the manner in which customers were enrolled in Illinois Bell's inside wire maintenance plan.

Customers will receive the credit if they paid for inside wire maintenance after Aug. 16, 1982, without requesting the service and if they did not choose earlier settlement options. This part of the settlement will affect about 1.6 million of the company's 3.6 million customers.

The credit will be listed as the "inside wire maintenance residual fund" on the page of the telephone bill that lists other charges and credits. The monthly inside wire plan will continue uninterrupted.

One of the earlier settlement choices included discounts of up to $20 when customers chose to upgrade existing telephone service with Touch-Tone, Line-Backer or Custom Calling features.

Under the second option, eligible customers received a one-time refund of $5.29 and their monthly wire maintenance service was discontinued.

Under the monthly inside wire maintenance plan, Illinois Bell repairs and maintains telephone wiring inside customers' premises without an additional charge per visit. The monthly charge is 39 cents for residence customers and 44 cents for small business customers.

Illinois Bell began offering this service in 1982, following an Illinois Commerce Commission order allowing Illinois Bell customers the option of installing their own inside wiring. The cost of maintaining inside wire was included in overall service rates as part of the monthly phone bill.

Two class-action suits were filed in late 1982 challenging the method by which the company introduced the plan. Telephone customers had been notified that their inside wire maintenance would continue under the company's new plan.

Jobs hotline now 24 hours

Illinois employers with job openings now have access around-the-clock to a pool of trained, job-ready employees.

The Project Chance hotline, operated by the Illinois Department of Public Aid, has begun accepting calls 24 hours a day from businesses searching for employees to fill entry-level positions.

"Employers can pick up the phone any time of day to find qualified, enthusiastic employees, suited to meet their hiring needs," said Edward T. Duffy, director of the Illinois Department of Public Aid. He will speak about Project Chance on Oct. 6 at noon at a meeting of the Belleville Rotary Club at Fischer's, 2100 W. Main St.

The hotline, 1-800-327-JOBS, has extended its hours in order to better serve employers in crisis situations.

"By expanding the hotline's hours, we expect to increase the number of job opportunities available through Project Chance and strengthen our efforts to move public aid recipients from welfare rolls to payrolls," Duffy said this week.

"Project Chance pre-screens job applicants, saving employers time and money spent on hiring."

"Clients are prepared for immediate employment, eliminating added, time-consuming training. Employers who prefer to do the training themselves will find clients eager and willing to learn new skills," said Duffy.

Project Chance trains candidates for jobs that exist in today's employment market. Training and placements cover a diverse collection of industries and occupations: retail, food service, mechanics, health care, packaging, hotel and housekeeping, clerical, word processing, truck driving, maintenance, security, printing and others.

The Targeted Job Tax Credit Program allows employees to deduct 40 percent of the first-year wages earned by Project Chance employees, with a maximum allowable credit of $2,400 per employee.

"By hiring Project Chance clients, businesses can become directly involved in strengthening Illinois' economy," Duffy said.

Warriors a win away from semis

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — As if to be polite hosts, the Warriors let the Chamaine Flyers think they had a chance for one quarter on Wednesday.

After that, Granite City didn't cut their opponents any slack, pouring it on in the final quarter for a 2-0 win to close out the third day of the Tournament of Champions.

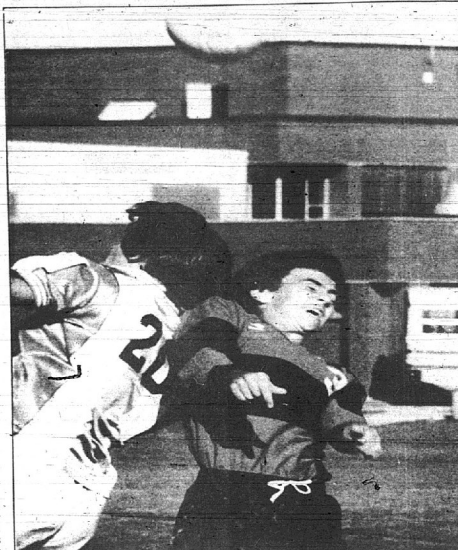

The win left Granite City with a 2-0 record in Group D competition. An 8:30 p.m. game with McCluer North (also 2-0) on Friday will decide the representative in the tournament semifinals on Saturday. The winner will advance. If the two teams tie, McCluer North will get the nod because of a better goal differential in the tournament (1-1 compared to the Warriors' 5-0).

Although the score was hardly lopsided, the Warriors seemed to be in total command for much of the game as they outshot the Flyers 30-4. Granite City raised its overall record to 12-2 while Chamaine fell to 8-6.

"We're beginning to show some of the things we can do during games," said Warrior coach Gene Baker. "It was a little more stable game for us. Chamaine is a very good team. Their No. 11 (Joe Vungco) and No. 17 (Jeff DelCarmen) are very nice players. They are spirited and tough."

But the Warriors exhibited those traits as well and threw in a couple of goals to boot. Flyer keeper Francis Gomez kept them scoreless with nice saves on John Van Buskirk and Herb Heaton in the second quarter. Then Rick Pyle's beautiful bicycle kick on Kirk Mills' free kick was labeled for the net until Gomez dove across at the 25:00 mark.

Mills took matters into his own hands at 30:17. Chris Ryan stepped over a free kick and Mills drilled it into the far corner from 15 yards out on the left side for his third goal of the year.

"I thought Mills played a much better game tonight," Baker said. "We got good leadership from all the captains. They needed to assert themselves and they did."

Gomez came through in acrobatic fashion a minute later to stop Vince Darnell's header on a nice feed from Troy Adamitis, but Heaton increased the margin to 2-0 when he deflected Dan Wilson's pass in at 55:19 of the third quarter for his fourth goal of the season.

"It was a better thinking game all around," Baker said. "They moved well and anticipated the plays much better. The ones who are able to think and get to the right spot are the ones who become better than the others."

The loss ended Chamaine's participation in the tournament and the Flyers were 1-2.

"This is the nicest tournament we play in," Gerker said. "This is our fifth year and it's always a great experience."

It was another night of relative inactivity for Matt Krekovich in the Granite City goal, and Randy Chapman played the last six minutes. Chapman preserved the Warriors' 100 percent shutout by tipping Eric Burdge's shot over the goal in the final minutes.

"I think Matt has shown more in the tournament than most of the other keepers," Baker said. "Some of them have had out-standing tournaments."

Now the Warriors look to McCluer North for a berth in the final.

"Granite City will beat them," said Gerker, who lost to both teams while beating Parkway North. "They are a little faster and can finish off the plays."

Baker isn't so sure.

"McCluer North has super-

Stars can't climb Norsemen's hill

Stars can't climb Norsemen's hill

By Gary King
Correspondent

GRANITE CITY — Playing a soccer game against Flo Valley is a steep hill in and of itself.

Playing Flo Valley with the wind in your face makes the hike to victory even steeper, like climbing Mount Fuji with ankle weights on.

The wind wasn't in favor of Granite City Campus on Tuesday during the first half of its contest with the mighty Norsemen, and as a result the Stars couldn't quite make it over the hump as they fell to Flo Valley 2-1.

As a rule, Stars coach Larry Petri doesn't covet the thought of losing. But considering Flo Valley entered Tuesday's contest as the No. 1 junior college soccer team in the nation, and considering GCC's effort, nothing less than solid, Petri found Tuesday's defeat a little easier to swallow.

"It was a barnburner, that's for sure," Petri said. "I'm pleased with our effort today. When you consider the wind conditions, and that they are the No. 1 team in the area, to come out with that score shows we can play with them."

Flo Valley coach Pete Sorber tipped his hat to Stars goalie Scott Clynes, who did his best to keep the ball out of the Stars' net.

"Boy, what a goalie they have," Sorber said. "I thought we played real well, but we just couldn't get the ball past him. We were hustling all game and had a lot of good balls we couldn't hit a little better, but Clynes kept it real tight."

With Clynes in goal, all they need is one or two goals and they're in any ballgame.

Unfortunately, by the time GCC got into Tuesday's game they were already staring at a two-goal deficit.

The Stars traded water for the first 20 minutes of the first half before Flo Valley's Jeff Sargent got a goal off a crossing pass from John Galkowski.

The Norsemen struck again with 5:36 left in the half when Warren Dey slipped and Clynes and slid the ball into an open net, giving Flo Valley all the scoring they would need.

As proved to be all the scoring Flo Valley would get as Clynes stubbornly denied the Norsemen a further advantage for the rest of the contest.

GCC's Steve Noy put the heat on with a perfect blast past Norsemen keeper Rich Chaples 20 minutes into the second half, cutting the Stars' disadvantage to 2-1.

GCC had a few more scoring opportunities late in the game, but the hill proved too steep.

"We'll take a 2-1 loss and not go home feeling too bad," Petri said. "This is the closest we ever came to them. They beat us 7-1 and 4-1 last year. I think the game being this close really says something for our program."

Petri also said the absence of forward Tom Buffe worked contradictory to GCC's cause. Buffe was ejected from Saturday's game with the University of Missouri, also forcing him to ride the pines Tuesday.

"Buffe is a big part of our team and very difficult with him not out there," Petri said. "Tommy is our Mr. Excitement. He is the toughest kid out there. He makes things happen when he's out there. If we would have had

Trojans want to crack Musketeers' goose egg

Trojans want to crack Musketeers' goose egg

MADISON — This is one egg that will be tough for the Madison Trojans to crack.

It's a goose egg, and the Red Bud Musketeers will be wearing it proudly on their shoulders when they take to the turf at Sam Dymally Field on Friday.

Red Bud will enter the game with a 5-0 mark, plenty of confidence, and a reputation of being one of the toughest if not the toughest, Class 1A football teams in the state.

"We're trying to keep our goose egg intact," said Red Bud coach Dale Huwer. "That'll be an incentive for both us and Madison. But we're just going to put the ball on the field and let the scoreboard take care of itself."

Easy for Huwer to say. So far, all the scoreboard has taken care of in Red Bud's first five games is averaging 20 points a game but have allowed 102 points.

Madison coach Don Smith doesn't have to be a math major to figure out what five wins and no defeats means.

"They're tough. They're going to be a tough team to beat," Smith said.

But Smith is by no means conceding a Trojan loss.

Madison will enter Friday's game with a three-game winning streak and a 4-1 overall mark on the season. Momentum will not be missing as far as the Trojans are concerned.

"Madison has the potential to be explosive," Huwer said. "They've got speed in their skill positions and size on their line. We've got our work cut out for us."

And the Musketeers' job will not be any easier if the Trojan backfield trio of quarterback Quincy Williams and running backs Ian Smith and Ricky Ball lives up to form Friday.

Williams has thrown for 439 yards and 10 completions this year while Smith and Ball have collectively rushed for 920 yards. Split end Stephen Boyd could add to Red Bud's workload if the Trojans go to their air game.

Boyd has hauled in two touchdowns, passes and has 188 receiving yards on seven catches.

As if the Trojans needed another missile in their already explosive offensive scheme, it appears fullback Craig Ingram has finally shaken a hand injury laceration in a 49-0 loss to Columbia.

"Ball and Ingram both ran real well last week in a 22-20 win over Dupu," Smith said. "We're going to give Red Bud a whole different look on offense."

Banged-up Warriors face tough Crusaders

GRANITE CITY — There is nothing that Ron Yates would like better this week than revenge. Unfortunately, he will go after it with something less than a full deck.

The Warriors (2-3) will square off with the Belleville Alhott Crusaders (4-1) in a non-conference game at Memorial Stadium. Kickoff on Friday is set for 7:30 p.m., even as the Tournament of Champions winds up its round-robin portion of its schedule at the adjacent soccer field.

It will be a busy night at the high school, but there are a few football players who won't be able to participate. Yes, injuries have begun to take their toll.

The worst news concerns running back Len Whiteside. Granite City's leading rusher missed the last two games with an injured shoulder which has now been diagnosed as being separated.

Whiteside is done for the season. He finished with 225 yards on 64 carries in three games.

"I was counting on him for the last three games at least," said Yates. "It surprised me that it help us at this time of year."

Neither does a sprained ankle for Steve Stockman, a tri-captain on the offensive line who was an all-conference selection last year. He was injured early in

Neither does a sprained ankle for Steve Stockman, a tri-captain on the offensive line who was an all-conference selection last year. He was injured early in the 42-0 loss at East St. Louis on Friday and it was feared he might have broken a bone. As it is, Stockman will be out at least two weeks.

Chris Bartling received 25 stitches after being involved in a car accident on Saturday, an accident which left Chris Wiehard, a pitcher for the baseball team, more seriously injured. Dan Grayson is also banged up with a leg injury this week.

"It's a bad time to be less than 100 percent," said Yates as he over Alhott and Springfield the Griffin the next two weeks. "We came out of East St. Louis OK with only one injury, but the others have added up."

Chances for a win on Friday are less than great, but a win would leave Yates with satisfaction for many reasons — not the least of which is a 4-1 posting the Warriors lost last season at Alhott the week after the East St. Louis win.

"We feel like they ran it up on us a little bit," Yates said. "And I will probably mention that we had a leg injury this week. The Crusaders are among the top 10 in the Illinois Class 4A poll and have four shutouts this year. The lone loss was a 26-7 defeat at Cape Central (Mo.)."

The Crusaders are led by running back Terry Chavis (307 yards) and fullback Tim Guida (235 yards).

Spikers' SWC hopes spoiled by Flyerettes

By Carl Jacobs

GRANITE CITY — The volleyball net at Memorial Gymnasium was like the Great Wall of China on Tuesday.

That's how big the mesh must have looked to the Lady Warriors as they hit countless serves into the net and lost a tough conference battle to East St. Louis 9-15, 14-11 and 10-15.

The loss ends most hopes of a Southwestern Conference title for Granite City, which fell to 5-2 in league play and 11-3 overall. They were chasing an undefeated Belleville West team and were counting on a showdown tonight. But the Warriors will now enter that match two games behind the Lady Maroons.

"It's a tough loss," Warrior coach Don Detering said. "East St. Louis gave us a good match in the Collinsville Tournament and I knew it wouldn't be easy tonight. I can't fault the effort of the girls but the execution was not there."

The Warriors' problems multiplied from their service troubles. The longest string of consecutive points was five from within 14-10 in the third game.

"This is the worst I have seen Granite play," said East Side coach Clarence Goldthrie. "They really intimidated us in two matches before this. Our girls were on the timid side but they let us in the game. When an underdog team thinks it can win, they get the momentum and really get tough to beat."

The Warriors turned out to be their own worst enemy. After making several nice serves to gain the service, they gained a point but turned around and gave the Flyerettes two.

"It's awfully hard to win when you fight to get a service and only get one point before giving it back to the opponent," Detering said. "Volleyball is a momentum game and you need it on your side."

Detering knew a bad game would visit the Warriors sooner or later. He just hoped his team could get over the stumbling block.

"When you play 28 to 30 games a season you're going to have a bad game in there," he said. "Sometimes you're able to get by it but when you have a bad game against a good team, you usually have to take a defeat and move on."

Granite City grabbed a 2-0 lead in the opening game but it would be only one of two times the entire match the Lady Warriors were on top.

East Side got the serve and took a 6-2 lead before a Wendy Knollman spike and a Tammy LeVaul service ace cut the Flyerettes' lead in half.

As Granite was trading water, the Flyerettes slowly increased their lead to 12-6. Granite went on a mini-surge to make the score 12-9.

A Lady Warrior hit-out and two spikes, one each from Tanvique Billip and Toni Ellison, locked the game for the Flyerettes.

In the second game, Granite City saw its 9-5 lead disappear as the Flyerettes stormed to a 11-9 lead. Lisa Kull's service ace and a Flyerette hit-out tied the game.

A moving violation gave the Lady Warriors the lead and Kull's next serve and two more East Side miscues tied the match at one game apiece.

Granite City's chance to salvage the match was quickly ruined when East Side raced to an 8-0 lead. Two Knollman serves, a Michelle Jeffries spike and an East Side hit-out got Granite City in the game temporarily.

Unfortunately for the Lady Warriors, the Flyerettes increased their margin to 14-3. Granite City then held East Side on 14 points for 20 minutes. The Warriors could muster only one point at a time, though.

Shantelle Tucker capped a night of frustration for the Warriors when she spiked a ball that bounced off Lisa Mills that fell out of reach of the Granite City players.

"I have to give my girls credit for how long they kept East Side on that final point," Detering said. "But like the entire night, we couldn't get our offense on track and we weren't able to catch them."

ST. JOHN'S was the second-place team in the Midget Division of the Madison County Girls Soccer Association last season. The team has had a friendly rivalry with the Crawford Agency team for many years, but this is the first time the Crawford team finished ahead of St. John's. Team members are, front row from left, Ginger Henson, Staci Taylor, Brenda Yates, Amy Killiam, Kathy Engelke, Beth McClelland and Nancy Mills. Back row from left are coach Ginny Henson, Christy Reynolds, Dawn Harris, Peggy Marsala, Kendra Boyer, Meshia Barton, Julie Fernandez, Jennifer Harris, Angela Alexander, Jennifer Harris and Donna Mink. and defense. We'll just see what's working and go with it."

Huwer said he isn't losing any sleep over the potency of the Trojan offense.

"We're going to take the football game to Madison when they have the ball," he said. "We have a very offensive-minded defense. We're not scared to go after them and see what happens."

The reverse also applies, Smith said. "I don't think they're going to show us anything offensively that we haven't seen before."

Smith said, "I'm not worried about their passing game."

But it would be understandable if Smith was worried about Red Bud's passing game. Doug Cerny has thrown for 396 yards and three touchdowns in limited action this season.

Supporting Cerny's cause in the Red Bud scoring scheme has been back-throwing Steve Steinhorn, who has chewed up rushing yardage like a mad Toro in Red Bud's first five games. Steinhorn already has 722 yards for a 6.3 average per carry.

"We're more confident in our passing game than any high school team around," Huwer said. "And when the air game isn't working, we'll not hesitate to go on the ground."

Sure it's Homecoming Week for Madison, and sure they would like to blemish Red Bud's ivory-white record. But according to Smith, shattering Red Bud's goose egg is not the only egg in his basket.

"We're not putting all our eggs in one basket this week," Smith said. "We want to beat them bad, but if we don't, it won't be the end of the world for us. We've got a tough four weeks ahead of us."

"So far we've been working hard and working for everything we get. And that's what we'll be doing again Friday."

explode, but we haven't yet," Schott said.

The defense led by Steve Schott and Kris Armstrong has done the job in blanking Alton, Belleville East, Cahokia and Belleville West.

"Losing Whiteside hurts Granite City," Schott said. "And I'm sure they remember last year. One thing they have is some size and strength up front. I'm expecting a tough game."

With Whiteside out, Yates will look more at Jeff Kohler, who ran well at East St. Louis (66 yards). Juniors like George Thomas, Rich Fenoglio and Randy Odom will also get a shot along with Terry Stanley and Kevin Sulphin in the backfield. Sulphin is again the backup quarterback with Bartling out for a couple of weeks at least.

"Althoff is always aggressive and very quick," Yates said. "The key will be to stop Chavis."

We stopped (Marvin) Lampkin pretty good last week. When you stop most teams' top back, it hurts them. East St. Louis just gets better."

"We have to make some breaks and hope they take us lightly. It will be a monumental task. We will just need some super intensity. These injuries will give us a chance to look at some juniors and sophomores and that could help us for the future."

NOTES: In other Southwestern Conference action this week, East St. Louis is at Belleville, East and Belleville West is at Collinsville. Alton plays at Cahokia.

speed," he said. "We have pretty good ball speed while they are flat out fast. They beat Aquinas Mercy 5-0 earlier in the year and Aquinas might win this tournament."

NOTES: The key game tonight will be SLUH vs. Vianney in Group A. Both teams are 2-0 after SLUH got a goal from John Barfield in the fourth quarter for a 3-2 win over Kennedy on Wednesday. Should the teams tie, Vianney would advance on goal differential (4-1 to 5-3). CBC and Aquinas Mercy would appear to be the favorites in the Group B and Group C, respectively, although they both have two games to play yet. McCluer North enters Friday's game with an 11-3 overall record. The Warriors and Stars will meet again at McCluer North on Oct. 19. The Warriors had 11 center-kicks to two for the Flyers. Granite City committed 13 fouls to 20 by Cahinnade.

Tradition has Tigers set to torch tame Wildcats

By Jim Baer
Journal Staff Writer

As tradition goes, one of the fraternities at the University of Missouri used to do its part to fire up the faithful before the big homecoming game each year. A tradition known as "couch burning" started in the 1950s, but died out a decade later because the event simply got out of hand.

The fraternity brothers on Richmond Avenue would drag out an old couch on homecoming eve, torch it and then stand back as the action got going. Couch burning was known to touch off full scale riots.

The rest of the homecoming tradition lives on, however. A queen is crowned, living unit displays are judged and the dance is hoped to be one of victory.

The goal of the homecoming committee each year is to pick an opponent unworthy of pulling even the most major of upsets. The Tigers' homecoming record is 43-27-5.

The winless Kansas State Wildcats are the folks Saturday. Score one for the homecoming committee.

Kansas State has lost all four of its games this year, being outscored by its opponents 142-74. The Wildcats were beaten 26-22 by NCAA Division I-AA Austin Peay in the season opener, and it hasn't gotten any better. Consecutive losses have been at the hands of Army, 41-14; Iowa, 38-13; and Tulsa 37-25.

Stan Parrish, K-State's second-year coach via Marshall University is shaking his head these days.

"I'd say there's some hope, but we played very poorly against Tulsa," Parrish said. "I didn't see anything redeeming in that game."

The only thing Parrish has seen is the ambulances hauling his players off the playing field. Five regulars have been lost to injury, including their second-leading tackler, line-backer David Wallace (56 tackles, 18 solos), who will undergo knee surgery and won't be back this season.

Missouri head coach Woody Widenhofer isn't willing to wave a crying towel for Parrish and the Wildcats. The last Big Eight victory for Kansas State was two years ago in Columbia (20-17).

"(Stan) Parrish will have his team fired up for this game," Widenhofer said. "He's a great psychologist. He beat Kansas a year ago, and we have to get physical and not turn over the ball if we are going to beat them."

Missouri turned the ball over nine times in last Saturday's 24-13 loss to Syracuse. Widenhofer said sophomore John Stollenwerk will get the nod at quarterback over regular Ronnie Cameron.

"Neither quarterback played well against Syracuse," Widenhofer said. "That's the poorest area of play in our offense. We'd have some controversy if both had played well."

Missouri defensive back Charles Murphy (12) will look to shut down K-State's passing attack.

Delino has rushed for 266 yards (7.0 average); Tommy Stowers, 241 yards; Darrell Wallace, 239 yards; and Cameron, 158 yards. Tony VanZant has rushed for 116 yards in a cameo role, averaging 8.3 yards per carry.

Missouri is averaging 20.3 points per game, while giving up 16.3. Senior fullback Tony Jordan leads Kansas State's running attack with 169 yards, averaging 3.6 yards per carry.

Gary Swin, a transfer from Snow Community College (Utah), is the starting quarterback for the Wildcats. Swin has connected on 51.6 percent of his passes for 474 yards and five touchdowns.

Growing pains

Illinois achieving confidence

By Jim Woodcock
Journal Staff Writer

One reason the University of Illinois football team has stumbled to a 1-3 record is because of the growing pains the Illini have had to deal with in working with Head Coach Mike White's revamped staff.

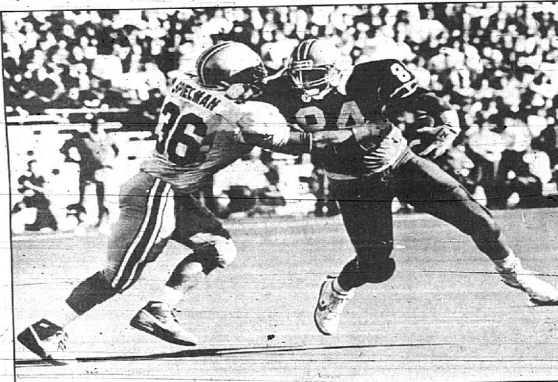

Following last season's 4-7 record, White hired, fired, and shifted his assistants around like never before during his eight-year tenure at the school. The new look included two major changes: a new offensive coordinator in Dwayne Painter and a new defensive coordinator in Howard Tippett.

White is the first to admit it has taken time for the players to become accustomed to the new coaches, and vice-versa.

"I'm not sure if suffering is the right word, but we're growing through the staff changes that I felt were necessary at the beginning of the season," White said. "There were times even (last) Saturday (in Illinois' 10-6 conference-opening loss to Ohio State)—and this is my responsibility—where the coaching may have inhibited the success of the players. Now that's not a major thing, but it's important to say because you've got to call it the way you see it."

It may be safe to assume the Illini's next opponent, the Purdue Boilermakers, know what White means.

The Boilermakers are currently learning their way through the system of new head coach Fred Akers, who is one year removed from the University of Texas. Hence, Purdue is 0-1 overall and 0-1 in the Big 10 following its 21-19 defeat last Saturday to Minnesota.

Illinois tight end Anthony Davis (84) battles Ohio State's Chris Spierman.

Purdue hardly will be vulnerable, though. The Boilermakers are off to their worst start since 1982, but two weeks ago they led highly ranked Notre Dame through the majority of the first half before finally losing 44-20. Purdue's other loss came on the road against Pac-10 power Washington.

Unlike Longhorn-style football, Akers has given quarterback Doug Downing ample opportunity to throw, and the senior has responded by completing more than 50 percent of his attempts, many of them without Anthony Hardy and tight end Brad Schumacher.

A win by either school in the 1:30 p.m. contest at Purdue will even its Big 10 record at 1-1, so there has been widespread optimism in both camps. White knows a triumph over the Boilermakers won't come easy, but neither did the Illini's only win of the season, a rusty 20-10 victory over East Carolina.

"One thing I'm disappointed in is we haven't found a formula to win," he said. "We don't want to go week to week thinking we're another 4-7 team. We haven't quite achieved that winning expectancy that real good football teams have."

However, White said even though the coaching staff and the players haven't made true connections yet, which he figures will come with time, the Illini haven't embarrassed themselves.

"This team has made strides every week," White said. "We've improved very steadily. And I feel we've regained some self-respect, and respect in other areas, with our performance against Ohio State."

"And I'm happy with the leadership. Several of our fifth-year seniors are beginning to realize our success depends on their attitude. They motivate each other."

"We feel we're only one game down in what's going to be a close Big 10 race. We're looking forward to Purdue."

Week II: Strikeball remains a reality

By Scott Marion
Journal Staff Writer

Welcome to the bizarre world of the Replacement Football League.

The New Orleans Saints are tied for first place in the NFC Western Division with a 2-1 record. They got there by beating the Los Angeles Rams 27-10 last Sunday, thanks to a guy who used to be a backup quarterback in the Arena Football League.

It sounds like something from a science fiction writer's vision of a alternate universe, but it's reality in the NFL during the players' strike. It's also what the Cardinals will have to face at noon Sunday at Busch Stadium.

The Big Red (1-2) lost 28-21 last Sunday at Washington in its first strike game. The Cardinals had 27 first downs, 398 yards of total offense and a big advantage in time of possession, but a potential game-tying drive halted at the Redskins' 6-yard line as the game ended.

The Cardinals had seven regular starters who crossed the picket line, while Washington had none. But Big Red head coach Gene Stallings believes the veterans were rusty from a lack of practice.

"I thought Earl (Farrell) and (Broderick) Styrrett did the best job," Stallings said. "Lance Smith, at times, performed pretty well."

"But it's hard to play a game with no preparation. The last few weeks, those guys have been thinking about anything but football."

Pass defense was the Cardinals' biggest weakness against Washington. Redskins quarterback Ed Rubbert passed for 334 yards and wide receiver Anthony Allen caught seven passes for 255 yards.

"We cut him a year ago," said Saints head coach Jim Mora. "He was a very fine high school player in the New Orleans area and was an excellent quarterback at Ole Miss. But nobody drafted him in the NFL."

"He kicked around the Canadian (Football) League and the USFL and didn't start and he never started in Arena Football. I don't know how he is. Last week may have been a one-shot thing, but I don't think so."

Shawn Halloran, who completed 16 of 25 passes for 258 yards against Washington, As of Monday, 12 New Orleans players had returned to the team as 14 Cardinals, including 12 on the active list, had crossed.

"I can't even advise (the striking players)," Stallings said. "Some of them have called me from time to time, but I just suggest they discuss the situation with (player representative) Joe Bostic."

"I'm sure (the Cardinals' front office) will continue to look (for players)," Stallings said. "You've pretty well lost the time you have to make them better football players; you have to do that in training camp."

"Now, it's just a matter of teaching assignments. Missed assignments really hurt us last week."
